

Burrill Gray

Owner- Grayco Factor Locators

Born in New Britain, CT and raised in New Haven, CT Burrill Gray has lived up and down the eastern seaboard, having attended Blue Ridge School for Boys, a private boarding school near Charlottesville, VA. After graduating from Blue Ridge School, he then headed west for the foothills of the Rocky Mountains settling in Fort Collins, CO and Colorado State University where he studied agronomy and agricultural economics. Leaving the program after two years, Burrill then worked as an operations manager with FoxMeyer Pharmaceutical Co. for four years. In the mid to late 1980's Mr. Gray entered the American University of Paris where he studied International Affairs and Economics. During this time in France, Mr. Gray traveled extensively throughout Europe, North Africa, West Africa, and the former Soviet Union. After graduating from the American University of Paris, he then enrolled in Boston University's graduate program in International Affairs. After completing his studies there he returned to the U.S. after living and traveling abroad for many years to take a position as a Program Manager with McGraw-Hill in Monterey, CA where he remained for nearly ten years. Currently, Mr. Gray heads his own factoring brokerage business, Grayco Factor Locators helping companies in a broad range of industries to secure the domestic and international accounts receivable financing they need to grow their businesses.